New Features Added to Mississippi Parole Board and Mississippi Department of Corrections Websites

Jackson—The Mississippi Parole Board and the Mississippi Department of Corrections websites now feature search capabilities for inmates completing felony sentences on parole and inmates currently incarcerated. The information displayed for each parolee and inmate is considered open record information according to state law and is provided to the public.

The Mississippi Parole Board website address is www.mpb.state.ms.us. From the Mississippi Parole Board homepage click “parolee search,” located on the left-hand side of the page. Type in the inmate’s last name, city or county to search.

The Mississippi Department of Corrections website address is www.mdoc.state.ms.us. From the Mississippi Department of Corrections homepage click “inmate search,” located on the left-hand side of the page. Type in the inmate’s full name, last name or first name to search.

In addition, the Mississippi Department of Corrections has added historical information on executions to the website. From the Mississippi Department of Corrections homepage click “Death Row & Executions,” located in the center of the page. There you will be able to select historical information related to the death penalty in Mississippi, a listing of death row inmates, and information related to executions.
