The Government Performance Project (GPP) is pleased to inform you that the GPP Final Report will be released by the Maxwell School in late November or early December of this year. In years past, the GPP has completed four individual reports on selected cities, counties, states, as well as federal agencies, in an effort to evaluate government performance. The GPP Final Report will be The Maxwell School's last and cumulative report. Please be advised, however, that the Government Performance Project's work will continue under the direction of The Pew Charitable Trusts, an organization which is already evaluating the project's structure and process.

In addition, the GPP is posting a new web site later this week. It will remain at the current GPP address: <http://www.maxwell.syr.edu/gpp/>.

As always, the GPP would like to extend our gratitude to participating governments. We appreciate your continued cooperation and patience throughout the research process.

Should you have any questions please feel free to send a message to GPP@maxwell.syr.edu. =20
