

If the Senate adjourns sine die and the House remains in session:

“There’s a health care crisis facing the people, communities and doctors in Mississippi. The Senate needs to get back to the table, get to work, and get a bill to my desk as soon as possible. Failure is not an option when the health of our state is at risk.”

In this situation, the constitution gives me the power to send the legislators home, but we are too close to a solution to give up.

The House and Senate are well aware of the health care crisis facing the people, communities and doctors in Mississippi, and now is not the time to walk away from the table. I want a medical malpractice bill on my desk as soon as possible.”
