

Statement from Governor Musgrove on health care:

“The health of our people is vital to the health of our economy. Health children go to school ready to learn, and healthy adults are ready to work. Our commitment to a healthy Mississippi is seen through our efforts to ensure access to quality health care and a stable environment for health care providers. Through the Mississippi State Department of Health and other state agencies, we are focused on the health of our people and its role in building good schools, good jobs and good communities.”
