

The infrastructure needs for communities and industries today go far beyond good roads and energy systems. They require a base that can handle the demands of an increasingly technological society, and BellSouth is playing a key role in the creation of that base.